HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When the mercury climbs up and keeps near 90° in the shade, all manner of cold things in the way of meats and drinks are suggested, but the most acceptable seems to be something cool to drink; in fact, the one is inseparable from the other. It is important that care should be taken in what we eat and drink, and for our drinks one does not always want to visit the soda fountain or clubs, but would like something made at home.

Apollinaris lemonade is better by heating the sugar. Put one cup of sugar and a half pint of water over the fire to melt. Add the grated rind of one lemon. When the sugar comes to a boiling point, strain, and when cool add the juice of three lemons. Turn into this just as it is to be served one quart of ice-cold apollinaris.

Strawberry sherbet is a refreshing summer drink. To one quart of fresh strawberries mashed fine add the juice of one lemon and table-spoon of orange flower water, and three pints of water. Let it stand two hours at least. Then strain through a fine sieve and add three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Put in some cracked ice when ready to use.

Salads please the eye as well as the palate. The fresh green and crisp salads, full of life and health, are indeed a delight. The important thing in making them is to have all the greens fresh and crisp, the meats and fish cold and well seasoned; use the best olive oil, sweet and cold. There are many kinds of salad dressing. The mayonnaise is the one used for most salads, but the simple French dressing is preferred by many, particularly on vegetable salads. Some consider a dressing ruined if mustard or sugar is added; others object to anything acid but lemon juice; so one has to study his own taste in a measure when seasoning. An old Spanish proverb says: "To make a perfect salad, there should be a spendthrift for oil, a miser for vinegar, a wise man for salt, and a madcap to stir the ingredient and mix them well together."

A dressing that is excellent on cabbage and many cold vegetables and "handy to have in the house" is a boiled dressing made of three eggs, the yolks and whites beaten separately, one teaspoonful of ground mustard, two teaspoons of salt, one-fourth of a tablespoon of cayenne pepper, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of melted butter or oil, one cup of cream or milk, and half a cup of hot vinegar. Put in a double boiler and stir constantly. Cook until it is as thick as boiled custard. Take from the fire at once or it will separate. This will keep in a cold place some time.

For oyster salad the following dressing is used: "Take four well-beaten eggs and add to them one gill of cream, one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoon of salt, a pinch of cayenne, two tablespoons of butter, and a gill of vinegar. Place in a double boiler and when it becomes heated cook about five minutes, stirring all the time; it will be like a soft custard. Heat one quart of oysters in their own liquor to boiling point, drain them, and mix with the dressing; put in a cold place. When ready to serve mix with them one pint of crisp celery, cut fine.

A nice fruit blanc mange can be made without milk, and is handsomer with red fruits like strawberries, raspberries, cherries, or currants. Take one pint of fruits and mash in a bowl with a half-pint of sugar; let this stand for an hour; then add one pint of water and strain through a sieve. Put on one side a half cupful of the juice and place the remainder on to boil; take six level tablespoonfuls of arrowroot and moisten with the remaining juice; stir in the first mixture when it boils. Cook for eight minutes, take from the fire, and pour into individual moulds and set away to harden. Serve with sugar and cream

Ingredients—3 eggs, 4oz. sugar, nearly 1 lb. flour, lump of butter the size of a walnut. Whisk the eggs well, add the butter previously melted and mixed with a tablespoonful of lukewarm water; stir in the sugar, then the flour well dried and sifted, into which you have thoroughly mixed one small teaspoonful of carbonate of soda and two of cream of tartar. Bake in flat tins, and before placing together spread the under layer with the following mixture, which may be made at any time and kept on hand till wanted: 4oz. butter; 1 lb. sugar, fine and dry, the yolks of 6 eggs and the white of 3, the juice and thinly paired rind of two large lemons. Put all except the eggs into a small enamelled saucepan. Simmer till thoroughly melted; then add eggs beaten, and stir over fire till the thickness of honey. Put a plain icing on top and sprinkle with desiccated cocoanut.

Those Millinery Ornaments, Flowers, Feathers and Fancy Jet, Sprays at L. B. Kerr's should be seen to be appreciated. They are without exception the finest ever imported here. Don't forget! A single article or yard at wholesale prices. *
